

Convention briefing

What structure should the new federal parliament take?

People vote for politicians to represent their interests in federal parliament.

If there is one House,
each state sends representatives according to its population.

But ... how can the 'little' states get their voices heard?

Are they equal?

